U.S. EXPORTS OF MEAT-ANIMAL PRODUCTS CURRENT SERIAL RECORDS

TO THE WESTERN HEMISPHERE

The Western Hemisphere is an important outlet for U.S. meat-animals and byproducts. Exports to 22 countries in North, Central, and South America in 1962 totaled $64 million and were 20 percent of total U.S. exports to all countries of $319.3 million. The Western Hemisphere countries provided an outlet for 91 percent of the livestock exported, 40 percent of the meat, 17 percent of the hides and skins, 12 percent of the lard, 11 percent of the tallow and grease, and 2 percent of the mohair. The Western Hemisphere was the principal market for U.S. exports of pork and beef and veal in 1962, taking 77 percent and 63 percent, respectively.

U.S. exports to the Western Hemisphere countries in 1962 of $64 million were down from the peak of $69 million in 1961, but were above the $61 million exported in 1960. Smaller shipments of meat and lard in 1962 were only partially offset by increased exports of tallow and greases and casings.

Canada was by far out largest market in the Western Hemisphere, taking $34 million from the United States in 1962. Other leading markets were Mexico ($11 million), Venezuela ($5.2 million), Colombia ($2.6 million), Guatemala ($2.1 million), Peru ($1.9 million), Ecuador ($1.6 million), El Salvador ($1.4 million) and Panama ($1.2 million). No other countries received more than $1 million of livestock and meat products from the United States in 1962.

U.S. exports to Canada in 1962 were mostly meat ($18.5 million), hides and skins ($8.0 million) and tallow and grease ($2.6 million). Exports to Mexico were mostly livestock ($4.1 million) and hides and skins ($4.0 million). Exports to Venezuela were mainly meat ($2.4 million), livestock ($1.1 million) and tallow and grease ($1.1 million).

Most countries in the Western Hemisphere have sanitary restrictions and other trade barriers which restrict the importation of livestock and meat products.

Argentina prohibits imports of U.S. sheep and cattle, except those animals which originate in areas which have been free of Blue Tongue disease for the past year. Blue Tongue affects sheep, but cattle may carry the causative virus.

Brazil places lard and other pork products in a "special" import category. Imports must be made with dollars purchased at a premium at auctions.

British Guiana restricts the entry of fresh pork products from the United States because of hog cholera. Entries of bacon and ham are also restricted by import permits. Imports of tallow and lard are restricted under the provisions of the West Indies Oils and Fats Agreement.

Chile's high import taxes discourage the entry of U.S. products.

Colombia bars entry of most livestock and meat products, and those not restricted are subject to high duties, both specific and ad valorem, and to prior license requirements.

Guatemala restricts the imports of tallow, lard, and meat by imposing high tariffs on these items. The import duty on tallow is equivalent to about 30 percent ad valorem.

High import duties limit Honduran imports of U.S. meat products.

In Mexico import permits from the Ministry of Industry and Commerce are required on most livestock and meat products. Imports are also subject to high tariffs. Imports of breeding livestock require an import permit from the Ministry of Agriculture and Livestock. Imports of slaughter cattle are prohibited. Imports of animal fats and oils are prohibited except for those consigned to the National Foreign Commerce Bank. The only canned or cured meats which may be imported are those with brand names registered with the Ministry of Public Health and Welfare.

Panama has specific import duty on lard of about 1.3 cents per gross pound.

In December 1962, Venezuela suspended imports of pork to permit domestic hog prices to rise.

With most of the nations in the Western Hemisphere trying to expand their livestock industries, the future of U.S. exports of livestock and meat products seems to be in some doubt. When the Latin American Free Trade Association (LAFTA) and the Central American Free Trade Association (CAFTA) become fully operative, the market for U.S. exports of livestock and meat products may be subject to increasing difficulties.

Table 1 is an overall summary of U.S. exports by important commodity groups. Tables 2 through 4 list U.S. exports of livestock, meat, and meat products to the 22 Western Hemisphere countries and the total to all countries in detail, by value, for each of the years 1960 through 1962. Similar information for quantities shipped is listed in tables 5 through 7.
